Community Residents:

Hope this finds everyone well. The status of Level 3 State of Emergency remains status quo. Work is underway to ensure the continued protection of our community while the Covid 19 Global Pandemic remains. TFN offices and buildings remain closed to the public.

As stated in my previous report, TFN are recognizing the needs and supports of our off-reserve membership; accessing resources for our members to purchase PPE and additional expenses during this pandemic time. I've been in contact with Indigenous Services Canada and continue to plan of delivering those resources; either to Friendship Centres or other urban organizations. More information and investigation into the process of delivery is underway and will be advertised on our website.

As Ontario is in the midst of lifting their restrictions; our community is in no rush to lift ours. We remain in a Level 3 State of Emergency due to the fact we are a vulnerable sector and must remain diligent in the health & safety of our community at large. A Sub Committee of the First Nation Control Group will be drafting the Protocols & Procedures for Band Buildings, Program Operations and Transportation – these measures will be available to the community once complete. We look forward to have employees back working out of our offices in the upcoming week or so; we are still looking into protocols and procedures for lake transportation services. More information will be available.

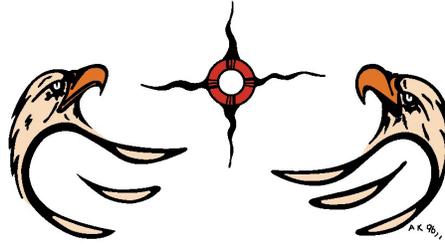

In the meantime; continue to self monitor, practice safe distancing (wear a mask when this may not be possible), travel only when necessary and keep washing your hands. On behalf of Chief & Council, take care and continue to be safe and healthy.

Miigwetch.

Respectfully,

Arnold Paul

FOOD CONTROL GROUP UPDATE - June 12, 2020

Hello everyone,

The purpose of the Food Control Group was to provide food security for community members who didn't want to travel due to the risk of COVID-19. There has been no new cases of COVID-19 in the Timiskaming District for a couple of weeks now and Nipissing District has also declared to be clear of any cases this week as well.

With that being said, Wednesday, June 17, 2020 will be our last day to provide food for all community members. We will continue to provide food for the clients who use the community services for shopping trips. The food group will no longer be providing food for community members who have access to a boat and vehicle after next week.

Please have your orders to us by the end of the day Tuesday, June 16 for Wednesday's delivery.

For those who are still eligible for the food group services, someone will be in touch with you by the end of next week to ensure you would still like to use the services.

Thank you to all who accessed our services. Although the risk of COVID-19 is low in our area, please continue to be safe when going out.

If you have any questions, please contact Michelle (705)237-8698 ext 601 or Rachel (705)237-8900 ext 312.

Community members,

Since the Provincial Government has given daycares in Ontario the go ahead to open, I thought I would share with you where we were at with the Tillie Missabie Family Centre.

I have been in contact with other First Nation daycares supervisors and with our Regional Program Advisor via teleconference over the past couple of weeks to discuss how the re-opening of First Nation daycares will look. There has been some great discussion, ideas, and concerns about opening up the daycares to the families again. Yesterday I received I received the Memo and Operational Guidance During COVID – 19 Outbreak for First Nations from the Ministry of Education. We had another teleconference call today to go over any questions about the guidelines and memo received yesterday.

There are many things which need to be addressed prior to the daycare opening. Some of the things that need to be done prior to opening include: Licensing amendments; new policies and procedures for screening, testing, health and safety protocols; staff training; set up daycare to promote physical distancing; going through the toys to ensure the toys that are used can be cleaned and disinfected regularly; removing the playground structures from the outdoor play area; inspections of the daycare by the Ministry of Education Program Advisor; obtaining PPE; create a handbook/fact sheet for the parents; and meeting with the parents to discuss the new policies and procedures to ensure they are followed and the expectations are met by everyone.

As you can see, it is a fairly lengthy list of things that need to be done prior to the daycare re-opening. We will be working closely with the local health unit, Ministry of Education Program Advisor, and the Environmental Health Officer to ensure we are doing everything we can to provide the safest environment we can for the children while they are in our care. It will take a few weeks to get everything ready to open. Our main priority is to have a safe environment for the staff and the children. There is no date set as of yet when we will be open, but we will keep everyone informed.

Should you have any questions or concerns with regards to the daycare, please feel free to contact me at the number provided below or you can email me: michelle.polson@temagamifirstnation.ca

COVID-19 UPDATE

Confirmation of Cases and Contact Tracing in First Nations Communities

The public health system and how health care is administered in First Nations communities is different in each province and territory.

If/when a case of COVID-19 is confirmed in a First Nation, the specific/administrative steps taken by regional/local health officials will vary according to provincial/territorial guidelines. However, the principles and priorities of providing support as required and ensuring that each case is managed appropriately remain the same across the country.

Please note that the First Nations Health Authority, which is responsible for the oversight of delivery of health care to First Nations in British Columbia, has prepared the following specific: Notice and Follow-up Process for a Confirmed Case in a First Nations Community

What happens when a case of COVID-19 is confirmed in a First Nation community?

- The specific/administrative steps will vary from one region to another, but the priorities will always be:
 - Ensuring that the affected person is informed of their status, knows the appropriate steps to take care of themselves and their loved ones (e.g. self-isolation), and has access to medical care as needed.
 - Putting immediate measures in place to reduce the chances of further spread, including contact tracing, and implementing the community pandemic emergency response plan.
 - Providing additional support to the First Nation, as required.

What is contact tracing?

Contact tracing is a process to identify and keep a log of individuals who may have come into close contact with someone with a COVID-19 infection.

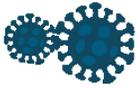

- While the detailed process may vary from one region to another, contact tracing is always conducted following well established public health practices.
- Anyone who is identified through the contact tracing process as being at risk for COVID-19 infection will be informed directly by public health officials. The public health officials will also explain the appropriate steps that the person should take (e.g. self-isolation at home).

Indigenous Services
Canada

Services aux
Autochtones Canada

Canada

Who is considered a “contact?”

- Anyone who has been in close contact with someone with a COVID-19 infection may be considered a “contact.” The level of risk of infection, however, will vary, depending on what kind of “contact” has happened.
- Close personal contact, such as caregiving, hugging or kissing, sharing food, cups or utensils, or living in the same household with someone who has a confirmed COVID-19 infection, are higher risk activities. There is a greater chance of the virus being transmitted through these kinds of contacts.
- Travel, working in a high risk environment (such as health care facilities, and participating in gatherings (e.g. ceremonial or cultural events), are also higher risk activities, and increase your chances of being exposed to the virus.
- Anyone identified through a contact tracing process who is considered at risk for transmission of the COVID-19 virus from that specific contact, will be informed directly. At that time public health officials will also explain the appropriate steps that the person should take (e.g. self-isolation at home, testing, etc.).
- Public health officials may not contact people who are identified through the contact tracing process, but who are considered low risk for transmission of the virus.

Why does contact tracing take so long?

Contact tracing is a complex, and labour intensive process. How long it takes depends on the situation. If the affected person has travelled recently, attended large gatherings, or been in close contact with a large number of other people, the contact tracing process will take longer than for someone who has already been self-isolating at home and carefully following other precautions.

I know of/have heard of a case of COVID-19 in my community. Why are their names not being released?

No personal information about anyone affected by COVID-19 will be publicly released. Even during health emergencies federal and provincial/territorial privacy rules still apply, and we must continue to respect everyone’s dignity and privacy. Personal information, including the name, home community, and health information about people affected by COVID-19 will only be shared as necessary with health officials.

Keep in mind too, that many First Nation communities are very small. Sharing personal information can be harmful to individuals and can put entire communities at risk by making it more difficult for health professionals to provide appropriate care.

We ask for everyone in affected communities to respect the privacy of their friends, family and neighbours, as we all work through this difficult time

Do the Chief/community leaders/elders know who the affected person is?

Chiefs and/or other community leaders are informed ONLY that there is a case of COVID-19 in their community. This is so that they can take appropriate action to protect and support the community, according to established emergency plans. NO personal or identifying information will be released to Chiefs, community leaders or other non-health officials.

How do I know if I have been in contact with an infected person if I do not know who they are?

If contact tracing indicates that you are at risk from contact with someone infected with COVID-19, health officials will contact you directly. These health officials will also explain what you should do next (e.g. self-isolate at home, get tested, etc.).

If you have not been contacted by health officials, but you are still worried that you may have come into contact with someone infected with COVID-19, self-isolate at home, and contact your local health care provider.

Your health is too important to take action based on rumours, social media postings, or news from unreliable sources.

How do I keep my family and community safe if I do not know who is infected?

The best way to keep yourself, your family and your community safe is to follow instructions from health officials and other trusted, reliable sources.

These include:

- Avoid gatherings.
- Wash your hands, often, and for at least 20 seconds.
- Practice physical distancing, keep at least 6 feet – or 2 meters - between yourself and others.
- Cough or sneeze into your arm.
- If you feel unwell, self-isolate and contact your local health care provider.
